

RESPONDING TO ONLINE BEHAVIOR

Sixty-three percent of students indicate that parental conversations help them stay safe online. Asking questions, engaging in conversations and being a strong influence on their online and digital decision-making can increase positive online experiences and choices for students.

HOW WOULD YOU RESPOND TO LEARNING YOUR CHILD...

- Lies about their age online or has a fake account?
- Has social networking site (sns) accounts, such as snapchat, that you did not want them to have?
- Private chats with someone they met online?
- Follows or visits online sites that put down classmates and friends?
- Posts hate speech about others?
- Posts attention-seeking pictures and texts in an attempt to become famous?
- Takes and/or sends inappropriate pictures or videos?
- Receives inappropriate pictures or videos from a friend or stranger?
- Engages in sexually explicit chats with online users?
- Plans to meet someone they met online offline?
